HOW MONMOUTH COUNTY GOT ITS NAME

ACCORDING TO SEVERAL SOURCES, including a booklet, titled "A Sketch of Monmouth County," published in 1929 by the Board of Chosen Freeholders, Monmouth County was named after the County of Monmouthshire, in South Wales, Great Britain. According to the "Sketch," Monmouth County was officially formed on March 7, 1683, by the General Assembly as one of the four original counties of the Province of East Jersey. "It was named, through the influence of Colonel Lewis Morris, after Monmouthshire, where his family had a vast estate."

HOWEVER, not everyone agrees. A long-time historian and former Executive Director of the Monmouth County Historical Commission, believed that the County may have been named after James Scott, the Duke of Monmouth. The strikingly handsome Monmouth had the outward bearing of an ideal monarch, but he lacked the intelligence and resolution needed for a determined struggle for power.

SCOTT WAS BORN in 1649, the illegitimate son of King Charles II and nephew of James, the Duke of York, who succeeded Charles to the throne in 1685.

BANISHED FROM ENGLAND because she claimed to be the king's wife, Scott's mother, Lucy Walter, settled with young James in Paris. In 1662 James was brought to England and installed at court as a favorite of the king, who on Feb. 14, 1663, named him Duke of Monmouth, Earl of Doncaster, and Baron Scott of Tindale and made him a Knight of the Garter.

WITH SUCCESSION to the throne becoming a burning issue in England, where anti-papal hysteria had been aroused by rumors that Catholics were plotting to seize power, James, the Duke of York, converted to Catholicism. King Charles blocked all parliamentary attempts to exclude James from the royal inheritance, and in September 1679 he banished the Duke of Monmouth from the kingdom. Nevertheless, the Duke quickly returned in defiance of his father and set about building up a following. In this crisis, Scott was championed for the succession by several leaders of the anti-Catholic Whigs in Parliament. In 1682-83 Scott became involved in the Whig conspiracy against Charles and James, known as the Rye House Plot. Although pardoned for his part in this enterprise, he was banished from court and took refuge in the Netherlands early in 1684.

UPON THE DEATH of Charles II in 1685, the Duke of York succeeded to the throne as James II. Monmouth returned to England with 82 followers in June and quickly raised over 4,000 men, but he was unable to rally the gentry to his rebellion. On July 6 his army of peasantry was totally defeated on the plain of Sedgemoor. He fled but was soon captured and beheaded in the infamous Tower of London.

THE DUKE, who had not yet been executed at the time of the naming of Monmouth County, had many friends and allies among the gentry of East Jersey. Richard Hartshorne, an associate of Scott's prior to leaving England, used the name "Monmouth" in a deed in 1678.

WITH ALL THIS SAID, we may never know how Monmouth County got its name.

During the months of March through September, on the fourth Thursday, the formal Regular Meeting is held in one of Monmouth County's 53 municipalities.

Regular meetings are those in which the Freeholders vote on resolutions and take formal action on the issues on the agenda. Workshop meetings are informal discussions of items to be considered at the next regular meeting. Both regular and workshop meetings are open to the public.

ELECTED OFFICIALS

STATE LEGISLATORS

NEW JERSEY LEGISLATORS, Senators and Assembly members, are elected from 40 districts of substantially equal population. Voters in each district elect one Senator and two members of the General Assembly. Citizens of Monmouth County are represented by legislators from four legislative districts: 11, 12, 13 and 30.

Legislative elections are held in November of each odd-numbered year. Assembly members serve two-year terms. Senators serve four-year terms, except for the first term of a new decade, which is only two years. This “2-4-4” cycle allows for elections from new districts as soon as possible after reapportionment. Reapportionment happens every 10 years, after the U.S. Census, when the boundaries of New Jersey’s 40 districts are redrawn to maintain an equal population in each district.

Each house elects a presiding officer from among its members - the President of the Senate and the Speaker of the General Assembly. They are second and third, respectively in the line of succession to the governorship after the Lt. Governor. The President of the Senate serves as acting Governor when the Governor and Lt. Governor are out of the state.

The chief function of the Legislature is to enact laws. A proposal to make a new law, or to change or repeal an existing law, is presented to the Legislature in the form of a bill. To become law, a bill must pass both houses by a majority vote and be signed by the Governor.

The Legislature can also propose amendments to the New Jersey constitution. An amendment must be passed by a vote of three-fifths of each house (24 votes in the Senate and 48 votes in the Assembly). No action by the Governor is required. If passed, the proposed amendment is placed as a question on the ballot in November for a public vote. An amendment may also be presented to the voters if the Legislature passes it two years in a row by a majority vote.

Additional powers of the Legislature include Senatorial approval of the Governor’s appointments of judges and other high officials. The Legislature is also empowered to ratify amendments to the U.S. Constitution, appoint the State Auditor, judge the elections and qualifications of its members, and institute and conduct impeachment proceedings against state officials.

CONSTITUTIONAL OFFICERS

THE CONSTITUTION of the State of New Jersey authorizes the formation of the following elected county officers: The Surrogate and the County Clerk, each elected to five year terms, and the Sheriff, who is elected to a three year-term.

The state constitution also provides for the appointment by the Governor of a Prosecutor for a five-year term of office. The Board of Chosen Freeholders is responsible for providing funds, facilities and personnel for the operation of these offices. Under state law, the freeholders do not supervise the activities of these offices; they do cooperate fully with these four co-partners in county government.

She is also a former Commissioner on the Monmouth County Board of Elections, serving as Secretary for two years.

Ms. Hanlon received her law degree from Fordham University in 1992, and following her graduation from law school, she was Law Clerk to the Honorable A. Simon Chrein, Chief United States Magistrate Judge for the Eastern District of New York. She then served as an Assistant District Attorney in Bronx County, New York, during which time she prosecuted white collar, narcotics and violent felony cases as a member of the Arson and Economic Crime Unit.

Ms. Hanlon currently serves on the Executive Board for the Monmouth County Bar Association and as a Trustee for the Monmouth County Bar Foundation. She is also a former Arbitrator for the State of New Jersey District Fee Arbitration Committee.

The County Clerk's responsibilities comprise recording all real property records for the County (mortgages, land title deeds, liens, trade names and many other documents); managing the county's electronic records archives and the County's open public records website; preparing the election ballots, processing vote-by-mail applications, tabulating election totals and certifying election results to the Secretary of State; assisting people seeking passports; and storing a high volume of the County's archival and historic records, some of which date as far back as the 17th century.

The County Clerk's Office also provides resident and veteran identification cards to county residents and administers oaths to notaries and public officials and performs wedding ceremonies. Clerk Hanlon initiated the County's first Mobile County Connection initiative, in partnership with the County Sheriff and County Surrogate, in an effort to bring county services to residents throughout the County.

MONMOUTH COUNTY is one of four original counties of East Jersey, the others being Bergen, Essex and Middlesex.

At the time of its creation, Monmouth County encompassed all of the present day Monmouth and Ocean counties. It ranks as the sixth largest county in terms of area.

Inhabited by more than 630,380 residents, Monmouth County is ranked as the fourth largest county in the state in terms of population.

One of the highest points on the east coast of the United States is the highlands of northeast Monmouth County. These are the first lands one sees, coming from the ocean into New York Harbor. It was this land that the Dutch explorer, Henry Hudson, saw in 1609 as his ship, the Half Moon, made its way into the river that today bears his name. In his ship's log, dated "September 2, 1609," Hudson wrote, "this is a very good land to fall in with and a pleasant land to see."

Monmouth County was established in 1683 and Freehold was established as the county seat in 1719.

The first and now the oldest continuously operational lighthouse in the country was placed in service at Sandy Hook in 1764.

The Battle of Monmouth took place on June 28, 1778, in what today is Manalapan and Freehold townships. It was the largest and fiercest battle of the American Revolution, and was where Mary Hayes gained fame as "Molly Pitcher" who carried water to thirsty American soldiers during the scorching hot weather. Later, she took up her husband's position at an artillery piece when he was wounded.

Every major American general of the war participated in the battle, including George Washington, who rallied his retreating troops to carry the day. It was the first major engagement in which the American forces took the offensive.

Most historians conclude that the Battle of Monmouth was the turning point of the American Revolution. Monmouth Battlefield State Park located on Highway 33 preserves the site of the conflict.

In the 1860's the seaside resorts of Monmouth County began enjoying an extraordinary reputation thanks to First Lady Mary Todd Lincoln who began vacationing at Long Branch, followed by visits from Presidents Ulysses S. Grant, Rutherford B. Hayes, James Garfield, Chester A. Arthur, Benjamin Harrison, William McKinley and Woodrow Wilson. In 1881, President Garfield died in Long Branch, the result of wounds suffered at the hand of an assassin.

The Garden State Parkway opened up the Jersey Shore to beachgoers, and in the 1950's to residential development. Additionally, the widening of Highway 9 in the 1960's, in western Monmouth County, spurred development in that region.

Monmouth County's MUNICIPALITIES

53 Municipalities - One County

THIS SECTION IS DEVOTED to the 53 municipalities that comprise the 472 square miles of Monmouth County. It lists addresses, telephone numbers and most of the public officials in each town.

Under current law, there are four basic forms of municipal governments, each deriving its powers from the New Jersey Legislature. The four basic forms of government are: township, borough, city and town. In addition, the New Jersey Legislature has enacted the "Faulkner Act," which enables municipalities to select a form of government which is a variation on the four basic forms.

In addition, a fifth form of government, the village form, exists in just one municipality in New Jersey, the Village of Loch Arbour, in Monmouth County.

In Monmouth County there are 35 boroughs, 15 townships, two cities and one village. Included within are some of the more commonly used names of the neighborhoods and towns within the official 53 municipalities. Although most are still in use today, some have disappeared altogether. You will find this list at the end of the Municipalities Section.

The county's website at visitmonmouth.com, has more information about County programs, services and resources available to residents, businesses and visitors.

More information about government in New Jersey can be found at the Monmouth County Library Eastern Branch in Shrewsbury which has a Government Documents Center. You can also access links to many government documents from the library website at monmouthcountylib.org
